

Queensland Heifer Show

Eighty young people between three and twenty-four years of age came together at Bell in April for the annual Queensland Angus Junior Show.

The outstanding success of the two day event was made possible by a hard working committee, a large group of sponsors and generous cattle donors. With a focus on education, experience, friendship and fun the show is run by the Queensland Angus group to develop the youth of the beef industry.

Participants listened to speakers on a wide range of topics including animal preparation and show ring etiquette, the opportunities in Angus Youth, commercial and stud cattle selection, meat cuts, and public speaking. Competitions included junior judging, cattle and parader classes.

New awards offered this year to continue to develop the youth were two scholarships to attend the beef cattle assessment course in Dalby and three awards to attend the Angus Youth National Roundup in Glen Innes in 2010.
